Press Release

February 2nd, 2010

Release Date - Immediate

The King's Gallery of The Villages has expanded to Paddock Mall in Ocala.

English owners John & Candy Coldwell and Tracy Freeman following great success in The Villages Florida have identified culturally aspiring Ocala and particularly Paddock Mall as a great location to open a second Art Gallery.

“Ocala is a great community and we have seen with fresh eyes the growth potential for businesses and particularly the commitment to the Arts in the City” says John Coldwell, President. “Paddock Mall is the number one destination for residents and we are so pleased to be opening there”

The King's Gallery has a range of art to suit all tastes and pockets from original oils, giclees and prints all framed to the client's choice. National, local and international artists works are featured with regular appearances by artists planned for the gallery. Collectible, decorative, religious and fun art by Thomas Kinkade, Brian Davis, Cao Yong, Godard, Bob Pejman, Dale Henry, Bob Boynton, Jon McNaughton to name just a few.

The owners bring with them their English humour and appreciation of art and don't think you have to be quiet as you view the art on display. “We like to entertain our customers and fun and laughter is what makes our gallery so very different” says Candy Coldwell Vice President.

Selecting for the home or office is made easier with Free in-home and office showings of art to fully co-ordinate the art to the room décor. This with free delivery & hanging ensures a pleasant experience.
